

Franco Iacch born in Palermo on 22/01/1980

Expert analyst in Information Warfare, Terrorism, Security and Defense. Author of multiple publications and articles on terrorism, insurrection, cyber-warfare and countermeasures (COIN and CT).

Master in International Counterterrorism with 110/110 cum laude, with a thesis on the tactical evolution of improvised explosive devices and possible predictive analysis in the theorization of new attacks.

Studies of weapon systems with NATO military deployments. Focus on Russian weapon systems

Diploma on Terrorism and its Geopolitical Mutations from SIOI and NATO Defense College

Author of the study entitled "The Importance of Discerning the Signals Inherent in Terrorist Propaganda"

Author of the study entitled "Asymmetry in the cyber-war context: the Hydra channels and the sprawling approach of pro-Is groups - Procedures and methods used by jihadist propaganda on the main Web platforms".

Author of the study entitled "The Cognitive Domain of Mass: The Enabling Asymmetric Key"

Author of the chapter "The Evolution of vehicular terrorism in urban contexts" published in the book "Conflicts - Studies and Research" published by Edicusano of the Niccolò Cusano University, in Italy.

Author of the study "The modus operandi of pro-Is acronyms: how to analyze an artwork - Some IW models to counter the jihadist version"

Author of the study entitled "The Strategic Communication of the Islamic State: resilience entrusted to the deep web".