

Short bio

Maria Sole Barbieri is an archivist and researcher at the Historical Archives of the European Union in Florence. She holds a PhD in History from the European University Institute (2025). Her dissertation, "National and Transnational Responses to the 1973 Oil Crisis: France, Italy, and the European Community," examines the failure of the European Community's energy policy and the national strategies France and Italy adopted in the wake of the oil shock. In 2025 she was a post-doctoral Fellow at Project House Europe, Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität München.

She has combined research with teaching at several institutions. Since 2023 she has been a teaching assistant in International History at the University of Bologna (Forlì Campus), and she has taught as a contract lecturer (enseignante vacataire) in the Master's program Énergie, Écologie, Société at Université Paris Cité. In 2023 she was also an exchange researcher at Sciences Po Paris. She earned her BA in History and MA in Contemporary History at the University of Pisa, with an Erasmus exchange at the University of Leicester (UK). Her research interests include energy and environmental history, history of international relations, of European integration, and transatlantic relations.
